

2nd Annual Teddy Bear Party & Sleep Over

Oh what fun they had on Saturday, February 13, with games, crafts and snacks. Afterwards, all the stuffed buddies got to sleep over at the library, but not much sleep was involved. The kids were surprised to see all their friends' funny antics that were caught on camera by Michele Wood and Lisa Trenter during a photo slideshow Sunday afternoon when they stopped at the library to pick up their buddies. ## Seven Brief Lessons on Physics

by Carlo Rovelli

"Delightful . . . The metaphors are vivid, the visions dramatic."

—Nature

"This enchanting book . . . looks at physics as a continually changing quest for understanding our universe, instead of immutable laws of nature . . . The essays are a joyous celebration of scientific wonder."

—Publishers Weekly

"An intriguing meditation on the nature of the universe and our attempts to understand it that should appeal to both scientists and general readers."

—Kirkus Reviews, Starred Review

"Seven Brief Lessons on Physics is a science book that reads like a poem, and resonates like one, too."

—Bookpage

"If you want to understand what gets physicists out of bed in the morning, there is no better guide than Rovelli . . . Seven Brief Lessons on Physics is an absorbing, lovely book . . . This is physics as romantic poetry and, by God, it's beguiling"

—New Statesman

Hidden Gems: Adult (Non-Fiction)

Angela's Ashes by Frank McCourt

929.2 McC

From School Library Journal - YA. Despite impoverishing his family because of his alcoholism, McCourt's father passed on to his son a gift for superb storytelling. He told him about the great Irish heroes, the old days in Ireland, the people in their Limerick neighborhood, and the world beyond their shores. McCourt writes in the voice of the child with no self-pity or review of events and just retells the tales. He recounts his desperately poor early years, living on public assistance and losing three siblings, but manages to make the book funny and uplifting. Stories of trying on his parents' false teeth and his adventures as a post-office delivery boy will have readers laughing out loud. Young people will recognize the truth in these compelling tales; the emotions expressed; the descriptions of teachers, relatives, neighbors; and the casual cruelty adults show toward children. Readers will enjoy the humor and the music in the language. A vivid, wonderfully readable memoir. Patricia Noonan, Prince William Public Library, VA

It's Not You: 27 (Wrong) Reasons You're Single by Sara Eckel

306.73 ECK

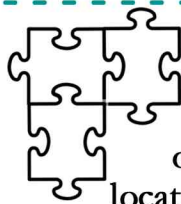

"It's Not You masquerades as self-help, but it's really a manifesto, a radical declaration of truths that shouldn't be all that radical but somehow are nonetheless. Sara Eckel does what no one writing about singleness has yet had the guts to do. She points out that coupling up is often nothing more than a matter of luck and that conventional wisdom about love is no substitute for real wisdom about life—something she has in spades."

—Meghan Daum, author of My Misspent Youth

You're Never Weird on the Internet (Almost) by Felicia Day

B - Biography

When Felicia Day was a girl, all she wanted was to connect with other kids (desperately). Growing up in the Deep South, where she was "home-schooled for hippie reasons," she looked online to find her tribe. The internet was in its infancy and she became an early adopter at every stage of its growth—finding joy and unlikely friendships in the emerging digital world. Her relative isolation meant that she could pursue passions like gaming, calculus, and 1930's detective novels without shame. Because she had no idea how "uncool" she really was.
