Today Will Be Different

by Maria Semple

"Few will be indifferent to this achingly funny and very dear book. This author is on her way to becoming a national treasure."

—Kirkus Reviews (starred review)

"On the fateful day she decides to be her "best self," Eleanor Flood—cult-famous cartoonist, mother, wife, cynic—spirals from one catastrophe to the next. Her day quickly turns hectic when her son, Timby, comes home sick from school. Hoping his father might help, Eleanor instead begins to suspect her surgeon husband is having an affair when his receptionist acts cagey. Eleanor's ego is bruised when she realizes an underling she fired years ago is now a famous artist, she dodges calls from her publisher about a long-passed deadline for her graphic memoir, and, finally, she suffers what may be a concussion after crashing headfirst into a sculpture. The latest from Semple (Where'd You Go, Bernadette?) is a sharp, funny read, and the author injects quirky elements—drawings, a comic book, photocopies of poems—to add another layer of enjoyment. Though Eleanor is snarky, her troubles and growing calamities are engaging. Some of her encounters are a bit too convenient, and the trope of a "day from hell" makes for shallow interactions between characters, but Semple augments these first-person antics with third-person sections that dig deep into Eleanor's past, finding particular resonance when telling the story of Ivy, the sister Eleanor feels she has lost to a wealthy husband in New Orleans. In the end, the novel [...] is consistently entertaining."

—Publishers Weekly

"With a strong narrative voice, fast pace and her signature wit, Semple cleverly spins another raucously funny story wound around deeper implications about the unexpected ways life teaches us to find meaning."

—Kathleen Gerard, Shelf Awareness

"TODAY WILL BE DIFFERENT is so unique, so smart, so funny, so beautifully humane, so utterly of our times, it's astonishing. I've scribbled exclamation points and underlined passages on almost every single page so I can go back and savor. I've started quoting it as if it's already a classic—which, no doubt, it will be."

—Gillian Flynn, author of Gone Girl and Dark Places

A Frog In the Bog by Karma Wilson

From Karma Wilson's website: It's a counting book. No, it's a cumulative rhyming tale. No, it's a counting book....Wait—it's BOTH. A small, green frog sits in a bog and eats bug after bug.

From one tiny tick to five slimy snails he gulps them all down. And with each slithering helping, "The frog gets a little bit bigger!" But is that log really a log after all? Frog is in for a big surprise, and he might not be able to keep his supper down! The illustrations are amazingly descriptive and colorful. What's grosser than gross? This book. But c'mon, kids love gross!

Grumpy Bird by Jeremy Tankard

From Amazon: Bird wakes up feeling grumpy. Too grumpy to eat or play -- too grumpy even to fly.

"Looks like I'm walking today," says Bird. He walks past Sheep, who offers to keep him company. He walks past Rabbit, who also could use a walk. Raccoon, Beaver, and Fox join in, too. Before he knows it, a little exercise and companionship help Bird shake his bad mood.

Praised by the Wall Street Journal as "comic perfection," this winsome, refreshingly original picture book is sure to help kids (and grown-ups) giggle away their grumpies, too!

There was an Old Lady Who Swallowed Some Books by Lucille Colandro

From Amazon: There was an old lady who's ready for school!

That lovely old lady has returned just in time for the first day of school. Now she's swallowing items to make the very best of her first day back. And just in time for the bus...

With rhyming text and funny illustrations, this lively version of the classic song will appeal to young readers with every turn of the page—a fun story for the first day of school!
